HomeLogic Receives TechHome Builder's High Impact Products of the Year Award

Marblehead, MA –May 17, 2005: HomeLogic, LLC is pleased to announce its OneHome™ Management and Control Solution has been selected by the readers of TechHome Builder for the TechHome High Impact Products of the Year.

This award was recently announced and will be formally presented at the upcoming TechHome Builders Conference and Expo in Phoenix, Arizona. The TechHome High Impact Products of the Year Awards recognize products from various manufacturers that save integrators and builders time or money.

"Being recognized by the readers of TechHome Builder for the first annual High Impact Products Awards is a great honor for our company," stated Jim Herman, HomeLogic Co-Founder. "We work hard to provide comprehensive, cost-effective solutions that make it easy for homeowners to better manage and control the electronic systems in their homes and at the same time, help integrators save time and money. "

HomeLogic's OneHome Management and Controls Solutions integrate leading sub-systems and provide a powerful and compelling graphical user interface for the homeowner. The systems are easy to learn, install, support and use. The homeowner and integrator may select to install the user interface with one sub-system or incorporate a variety of sub-systems including security, climate, lighting control, distributed audio, messaging, video surveillance, irrigation, and pool/spa controls into a whole-home, integrated solution.

"Our dealers have played a major role in helping us complete a most successful first year-plus of installing OneHome solutions," noted Joe Lautner, VP Marketing and Sales. "We are especially proud to receive this award based on input from our dealers who are enjoying the benefits of our products and services." "Builders play a key role in introducing new TechHome Solutions to their clients. OneHome Solutions provide a great packaged set up of upgrades that both enhance homes and increase builder's revenues."
